

Without a gym, Petra Nera wins by R2,200 a month.

Dropping the gym removes R650 of membership and R1,170 of Uber fares from Petra Nera, and removes the one benefit that made SoHo competitive. The gap goes from R380 to R2,200 — R1,100 each.

WHAT REMOVING THE GYM DID

Petra Nera drops R1,820 a month — R650 membership plus R1,170 in Uber fares to Planet Fitness. SoHo loses nothing in cash, but loses the benefit that was carrying it: an on-site gym is worth nothing if you do not use one. The gap moves from R380 to R2,200, and every stress test below now favours Petra Nera.

TABLE 1A

Who pays what

One person travels to CRC; the Wits fare is shared. An Uber costs the same with one passenger or two, so the household totals do not change — but the split between you does, and sharply.

MONTHLY COST PER PERSON — CRC BORNE BY THE TRAVELLER, EVERYTHING ELSE HALVED
LINE	PETRA NERA	SOHO R8,800	SOHO R9,500

The other person pays	R5,887	R6,336	R6,686
Household total	R11,773	R13,973	R14,673
If instead you split everything equally	R5,887 each	R6,987 each	R7,337 each

THE COST LANDS ON ONE PERSON

Moving to the R8,800 SoHo unit costs the CRC traveller R1,750 a month more than Petra Nera — but costs the other person only R450. Nearly four fifths of SoHo's extra cost falls on whoever makes the church run.

Worth saying out loud before you choose: at Petra Nera you each pay the same R5,887, because the walk is free. At SoHo the bill splits R7,637 against R6,336 unless you agree to even it out.

WHY THE TOTALS DID NOT MOVE

Uber prices the trip, not the seat. One person to CRC costs the same R50 each way as two, and sharing the Wits car halves what each of you contributes without changing the R823 the household pays. So this refines who owes what, not what it costs — every other table on this page is unaffected.

ANSWER: NO, THERE IS NOTHING BETTER

Everything cheaper than R8,800 in this complex has one bathroom or one bedroom. The next two-bathroom unit up is the R10,500 headline one you started with, then R12,000. For a 2-bed 2-bath, R8,800 is the floor at SoHo Junction — and it is available now.

COULD THE R8,800 HAVE NO
CHARGES AT ALL?

Almost certainly not. The charges exist at scheme level — sale listings show sewerage of R704.47 inside the levy and refuse of R353.05 inside the rates, so the body corporate incurs them on every unit. The only question is who pays: the landlord absorbs them into the rent, or bills them on top. Two other SoHo landlords bill them on top, and the R8,800 advert does mention prepaid electricity — so it is not silent on utilities, just brief on levies. The ladder below is the strongest evidence.

TABLE 5B

Is the R8,800 base rent or all-in?

Put every SoHo unit on the same all-in footing and only one reading is coherent.

SOHO JUNCTION — ADVERTISED AGAINST ALL-IN
UNIT	ADVERTISED	CHARGES	ALL-IN	READING
1 bed 1 bath, 48 m²	R7,800	not stated	R9,200 if base	—
2 bed 1 bath	R9,100	R1,290 stated on listing	R10,390	Confirmed all-in
2 bed 1 bath	R9,500	not stated	R10,790 if base	—
2 bed 2 bath — 62 m², 2 bays	R9,500	R1,400 stated on listing	R10,900	Confirmed all-in
2 bed 2 bath — 1 carport — yours	R8,800	not stated	R10,200 if base — assumed	Fits the ladder
...or, if it were already all-in			R8,800	R1,590 below the cheapest one-bathroom unit. Implausible
2 bed 2 bath	R12,000	not stated	R13,400 if base	—

THREE REASONS IT IS BASE RENT

- 1. The ladder. Read as base, R8,800 lands at R10,200 all-in — just below the R10,390 one-bathroom unit and R700 below the other two-bathroom one. Coherent. Read as all-in, it undercuts every other unit in the complex by R1,600–R2,100, for a two-bathroom flat. Landlords do not price that far below their neighbours by accident.
- 2. The deposit. R9,000 against R8,800 is 1.02× the rent — the normal one-month convention. If the true rent were R7,400 with R1,400 of charges folded in, the deposit would be an odd 1.22×.
- 3. The advert is brief, not inclusive. It does mention prepaid electricity, so the agent was describing utilities — just not exhaustively. Silence on levies is an omission, not a statement that they do not exist.

BUT CONFIRM IT ANYWAY

It is R1,400 a month — R16,800 a year, and it is one question: “Is R8,800 the total, or are sanitation and refuse billed on top?”

If it does turn out to be all-in, SoHo's figure falls to R12,573 and the gap to Petra Nera narrows from R2,200 to R800 a month — still Petra Nera ahead, but close enough that the second bathroom, the pool and the guard house would be worth re-weighing.

Worth asking the same of Petra Nera in the same call. Its R1,150 has the same unknown attached, in the same direction.

TABLE 6

What would change the answer

PETRA NERA AGAINST SOHO R8,800 – EACH SCENARIO ON ITS OWN
IF...	PETRA NERA	SOHO R8,800	GAP
Base case — as tabled	R11,773	R13,973	R2,200
SoHo electricity is R900, not R650	R11,773	R14,223	R2,450
SoHo water is R350, not R200	R11,773	R14,123	R2,350
SoHo electricity is R500	R11,773	R13,823	R2,050
SoHo levies are R1,290, not R1,400 the figures on listing 117418093	R11,773	R13,863	R2,090
Petra Nera electricity is R1,300	R12,073	R13,973	R1,900
Petra Nera bills sanitation and refuse on top, at R700	R12,473	R13,973	R1,500
Petra Nera bills them at SoHo's level, R1,400	R13,173	R13,973	R800
You later join a gym R650 membership + R1,170 Uber at Petra Nera; free at SoHo	R13,593	R13,973	R380

EVERY ROW FAVOURS PETRA NERA

Nothing plausible flips this now. Even the worst case — Petra Nera billing sanitation and refuse at SoHo's full R1,400 — leaves it R800 a month ahead. The only scenario that closes the gap is taking a gym membership after all, and even that leaves Petra Nera R380 ahead.

Searched Fourways, Broadacres, Douglasdale, Dainfern, Sunninghill and Helderfontein for two-bed two-bath stock between roughly R8,000 and R11,500. Not exhaustive — most listings do not state bathrooms, levies or amenities, so filtering from the outside is unreliable. Lonehill, Craigavon and Bryanston were not covered in depth.

TABLE 8

SoHo electricity and water — the evidence

NO TENANT REVIEWS EXIST

I searched for resident reports of an actual bill and found none. HelloPeter carries zero reviews for SoHo Junction; there are no Google review threads, forum posts or MyBroadband discussions giving a figure, and no rental or sale listing states a rand amount for electricity. R650 is a derived estimate, not a measurement. The range below is real uncertainty, and one phone call to the estate manager would close it.

WHAT IS ACTUALLY DOCUMENTED
FINDING	SOURCE	EFFECT ON THE ESTIMATE
Gas hobs complex-wide	Developer specification	Removes the cooking load — roughly 10% of a normal bill
Central water heating system	Developer specification, and the R9,500 rental listing	Removes the geyser — 30–40% of a normal bill. It sits on the body-corporate account
Low-energy lights, inverter-ready	Developer specification	Small further reduction
Prepaid electricity meters	Both rental listings and sale listings	You buy units; no monthly account
Water and electricity are prepaid via STSS sub-metering	SoHo rental listing 117418093	Corrects an earlier reading. A sale listing said water sits in the levy — that is the owner’s levy. Tenants do pay for water, so the estimate rose from R50 to R200
Levies quoted as refuse R399 + domestic effluent R890.65 = R1,289.65	SoHo rental listing 117418093	Second data point against the R900 + R500 = R1,400 on the R9,500 listing. The ~R110 difference is the security share. R1,400 is used here as the more conservative figure
2-bed levy R2,207.77 reserve fund R540.74 · sewerage R704.47 · CSOS R32.52 · water and maintenance included	Sale listing, 4 Poplar Avenue	The R900 tenant “sanitation” charge tracks the R704.47 sewerage line
2-bed rates R924.64 rates R572.59 · refuse R353.05	Sale listing, 4 Poplar Avenue	The R500 “refuse & security” charge tracks the R353.05 refuse line plus a security share
City Power 2026/27 prepaid domestic	City Power tariff schedule	R3.06–R4.37 per kWh. The ~R200 fixed charges sit on the scheme’s bulk account, not your meter

HOW R650 IS DERIVED

Questions to ask

PETRA NERA 1. Are sanitation, sewerage and refuse billed on top of the R1,150, or included? Worth up to R1,400 a month. 2. If billed separately, what did they come to last month? 3. Can we see a recent utility bill, so the R1,150 is confirmed rather than estimated? 4. What does the R2,000 admin fee cover, and is it negotiable? Market rate is R950–R1,500. 5. What is the annual escalation percentage? 6. Security setup — guard, access control, CCTV, perimeter? 7. How many parking bays, covered or allocated? 8. Backup power and water storage during outages? 9. Age and condition of geyser, plumbing and roof — who pays for repairs? 10. Will the landlord contribute to repainting given the condition? 11.
